Early identification of social-emotional challenges can make all the difference to a young child. With the typical ups and downs of young children's emotions and behavior, delays or problems can be easily missed.

As more children are increasingly exposed to risk factors such as poverty or toxic stress, the likelihood of depression, anxiety, and anti-social behavior increases. The earlier a behavioral concern is identified, the greater the chance a child has for reaching his or her full potential in life.

- Understand why this simple screening is important for children ages 0-5
- Become familiar with how to use the ASQ-3, including how to administer, score, interpret and make referral decisions based on the results
- Learn to effectively communicate with parents about screening and follow up; support parents to complete the ASQ-3
